

LIFE Climate Foundation Liechtenstein

supports the first ever held summit with focus on biomimicry innovation and finance in Europe

Vaduz, Zurich

Together with the Foundation For Global Sustainability and swisscleantech, the business association for sustainable and liberal market economy, LIFE Climate Foundation Liechtenstein is bringing the leading figures in the field of biomimicry to Switzerland. From August 29 to 31 2012 a range of workshop sessions and conferences will be held focussing on the topics of how to strengthen cleantech innovation with biomimicry principles, and what finance tools are at disposal.

Designs, products and systems inspired by nature's principles – called Biomimicry - are poised to be industry leaders in innovation, energy efficiency, radical resources productivity and overall sustainability.

Biomimicry has the potential to be a key driver of economic growth and the transition into a more energy and resources efficient economy.

To accelerate the concrete translation of bio-inspired technologies into commercial products and organizational change, appropriate financing models and metrics will have to be developed and implemented.

When: 29. - 31. August 2012

Where: Zürich Zoo
